Dear Colleagues,

OCHA has recently reestablished an agreement with the Lonely Planet Travel Company making their country guides and language phrase books readily available for OCHA staff to access. Lonely Planet is a 44-year-old authority on travel and has kindly allowed OCHA access to all of its relevant content for free to support our staff whilst in the field. Featuring essential information regarding local customs, practical advice and transportation routes as well as recommendations for where to eat or spend your leisure time. It is hoped that this will be a useful resource both where you are deployed as well as where you may travel to on a R&R. You'll also find phrasebook files for languages ranging from Swahili to Farsi.

All of the files are in pdf downloadable format. This is part of an ongoing partnership with Lonely Planet who will continue to update the content on a regular basis. Seconded to OCHA, such as Stand-By-Partners and external UNDAC employees will be sent copies prior to their deployment. A link to the guides can be found on the Surge Capacity OCHANet page or directly at:

Best regards,
Rudi
