

After successive years of major crisis for Ethiopia in 1999 and 2000, with people suffering from both war and drought, the Emergencies Unit's role to support the Humanitarian Coordinator and the DMT in facilitating a coordinated, well-resourced and effective international relief response was essential. The Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs (OCHA) took over the financial support of the unit and the UNDP Emergencies Unit for Ethiopia was once again renamed and became the UN – Emergencies Unit for Ethiopia (UN-EUE).
